But not

Happens both with MySQL and Elasticsearch

I suspect it's a mathematical calculation which uses a currency. Let's debug together at our next session.

Comments

I think it is a system issue

Try modifying the Currency selector locale options to en_US.UTF-8

Ok, trying that logs are clean now. Thanks!

Message in Tiki is now
Marc Laporte 2021-02-08 19:26

"Set locale for currency formatting, for example en_US or en_US.UTF-8 or en_US.ISO-8559-1. Default is en_US."

Looks like this will need an update.

I wonder

Should we have a default site setting?
Overridable by tracker field?

On new server (Debian 11): C.UTF-8

<https://tiki.org/forumthread77393-Error-en-us-is-not-supported-by-this-system>

<https://unix.stackexchange.com/questions/597962/how-widespread-is-the-c-utf-8-locale>

Ideally, Tiki would indicate available locales on server wherever we need to enter it.

```
locale -a
```

Maybe this should be centralized?

Marc Laporte 2023-02-27 16:12

So site admin can change in one place in the admin panel and use
<https://doc.tiki.org/System-Configuration> to manage server difference.

Proposal

Marc Laporte 2023-02-27 20:50

1. We add a new pref "default locale for currency formatting"
2. Current fields become optional "override of locale for currency formatting"
3. In tiki-check.php, we show what locales are available.

And please backport to 25

Marc Laporte 2023-03-13 12:25

This will permit me to do 25x.avan.tech with an automated update of data from avan.tech

Done

victor.emanouilov 2023-03-15 05:38

<https://gitlab.com/tikiwiki/tiki/-/commit/def75c9142e8330eea744bf62dcfc3ff399fc6da> and backported to 25.x

I need 24x as well

Marc Laporte 2023-03-15 05:57

So I can remove override from all tracker fields, and have a different default for different servers.
