Description

When searching for related tickets, sometimes the title is not enough for you to figure out if they truly are related. Unfortunately, the titles in the search results are not hyperlinked nor do they offer tooltips with extra info.

Hyperlinking the title part (with a target="_blank" to avoid accidents) would already help visually separate the title from the rest (but I still think it should be simplified, see item78700). I think in the case of the related items search results, only the status icon and title should be presented on the line, everything else should be in a mouse hover details popup... and turns out there already is a way to do that: just do the same kind of Popup Technology that can be seen when mousing over the titles in <https://avan.tech/Add-a-task-confirmation-message> and make that the standard default everywhere. Tiki should provide simple visual overview clarity by default, and if people want to peek at more they can hover the mouse over the item, and if they want even more they can click them.
